MEDICINAL

Electropose.
Office of York Enterprise, Yorkville, S.C., Aug. 14, 1891.
Atlantic Electropose: Gentlemen—For the past years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspepsia.
After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to its normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is rapidly gaining in flesh; and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery. Which speaks volumes for the wonderful curative powers of the Electropose, as her case was considered hopeless. If any are skeptical on the subject, let them try the Electro-pose, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispel all doubt. Yours truly, W. M. PROBST.

Why Virginians Are Proud

From the earliest Colonial days, 300 years ago, their history has been proud and high.
These people were of a higher type than any were who came from England into the other settlements of America. The original grantees of the charter of Virginia were gentlemen of good birth and standing at home, and under their guidance Virginia grew and prospered as no other colony had ever done for near 100 years.

And when, in 1685, the edict of Nantes was revoked the exiled Huguenots found homes and warm welcome here, and brought with them the education, the handicraft and the high principles which had made them the nobles and bravest of the sons of France. After the execution of King Charles his adherents to the number of 80, 000 sought refuge in Virginia.

Thus, this fairest of all the lands of Great Britain was possessed by a higher class of people than had ever before or since, and colonized and developed any country. From the beginning they were steadfast in their principles, and when their king was a fugitive seeking asylum the House of Burgesses of Virginia deputed an envoy (Colonel Morrison) of their body to seek him and invite him to set his throne up here, and this steadyfastness of character is the foundation of the high and noble pride of our people.

It sustained and developed the colony in its remarkable history during the first two centuries of its life, until when one hundred years ago the Virginians would no longer endure the encroachments of the king, declared their independence of his crown and created this great republic. Virginians conceived, sustained and accomplished this great scheme of civil liberty, which all mankind to day admire and imitate.

One of the wisest statesmen of our time declares "the histories of the United States, written by New England book-makers are all false. They teach that New England had much to do with the creation of this government, whereas it was conceived, sustained and accomplished by about a dozen Virginian gentlemen, and New England had nothing to do with it." The noble author of this declaration was a Pennsylvanian of the very highest standing. It is unfortunate that he has passed away, for he declared the cherished purpose to be to study and demonstrate what 'twas that made these men so great.

The great Georgia Senator, Ben Hill, in the last speech he ever made (the hand of death was then upon him), declared: "I never enter Virginia that I do not feel I should uncover my head in reverence to her great dead and in respect to her great living men, for I tell you that never in the world's history has any nation produced so many men so great as Virginia!"

We all know who they were. They were born and bred right around us here. Gentlemen all of birth, breeding and education.
Their names are household words and their statues stand upon that noble monument to Washington, their chief.

While Virginia, then an independent nation, bore more than her part of the Revolutionary war, she sent her son George Rodgers Clarke, with troops to strike Great Britain in her northwest territory.

Under unparalleled hardships that little Virginia army penetrated into the heart of that territory, captured all of its garrisons and added it to the territory of Virginia.
When the war for independence closed the confederate States soon settled amongst themselves their respective quotas of the costs.

The little New England States pleaded poverty in bar of the claims due from them.
Thereupon Virginia, with a grandeur before unknown in history, gave all that great domain which to-day embraces Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin to be the common property of all the States. And then went further. Having more than twenty times protested against the introduction of slaves into her own territory, she passed an enactment by the Government of the United States that no slave should ever enter that ceded land. This prohibition greatly displeased the New Englanders, who had mainly lived and grown rich by selling negroes from Africa and selling them to the other colonies of England.

When peace was made with England, each one of the colonies, being an independent State, made its separate treaty of peace with England, each being then recognized as an independent nation, and then under Virginia's guidance formed the government of the United States, each State expressing or understanding its right to secede from the new formed confederation whenever the powers delegated to it as a central government should be injuriously exercised.

Thereafterward Virginia, having created the United States, guided their policy and expanded their power for more than fifty years in their pursuit to highest period. Early in the century a Virginian acquired from France the Louisiana Territory west of the Mississippi, and the same great statesman sent the Virginia pioneers, Lewis and Clarke, beyond the Rocky mountains to the shores of the Pacific.

Her hardy sons—Johnson and Field Sevier—had years before cleared Kentucky of the Indians and made it a white man's home, and all over the great South young Virginians left their pleasant homes to colonize and organize that vast and fertile region which to-day produces the chief wealth of this country.

It was a Virginian (Sam Houston) who went down into Texas and led it to independence of Mexico, and a few years later on a Virginian President annexed Texas to the United States.

When the war with Mexico followed two Virginians generals led our conquering armies and won us New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Thus, ever since her existence Virginia's sons have led in all great measures of this nation, and therefore we are proud.

Under the outbreak of the war between the States they were the able presidents, senators, governors and generals of this country. And in that greatest war of the world's history, in which more than three millions of names were enrolled, three great names will go sounding down the ages, forever exemplars to the unborn generations of every noble sentiment and manly virtue.

You know them all before I name them, Lee, Joseph Johnston and Stonewall Jackson, all Virginia's sons—Gen. Dabney H.
Maury in Richmond Times
